Moscow Message Awaited On Nuclear Test Ban Pact

No Immediate Relief Sighted In Bitter Cold

By The Associated Press
Snowstorms and unseasonable cold plagued broad sections of the nation again today after a weekend of wild weather in northeast sections.

A blustery snowstorm which hammered New York State and New England over the weekend tapered off after dumping up to 18 inches of snow in some areas.

The storm swept into the lower Great Lakes region and along the western slopes of the Appalachians. Heavy snow fell in some areas and strong, westerly winds caused considerable blowing and drifting.

One Bargaining Barrier Lifted By Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States expects to know within the next week or so whether there is any serious possibility of getting an agreement with the Soviet Union on a nuclear weapons test ban.

Further clues on the chances for a treaty and on Soviet Premier Khrushchev's objectives may be forthcoming with the return from Moscow of U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler. He is due in Washington Wednesday.

Kohler is bringing with him a new message for President Kennedy from the Soviet leader, presumably concerning the current test ban talks. They resume Tuesday in New York, with U.S., Soviet and British negotiators participating.

Nevada Tests Halted
Khrushchev already has removed a major barrier to serious bargaining by telling Kennedy in an exchange of letters that he would accept two or three on-site inspections a year in the Soviet Union as part of a system to prevent cheating.

The United States and Britain have been asking the Soviet Union to answer a number of questions about how their proposed inspection system would work, such as the amount of free movement the checkers would have.

Soviet officials have been tight-lipped so far.

In a new move to spur the lagging negotiations, Kennedy on Saturday ordered a temporary suspension of underground nuclear testing in Nevada. He coupled this action with a warning that the United States will never again agree to a long unpoliced ban on tests.

"We are maintaining the capability and readiness to resume our test program at any time," the President's statement said.

Detection Difficult
This declaration no doubt was a reminder to the Soviets that the United States intends not to be caught short again—as it was in September 1961 when the U.S.S.R. broke a three-year unwarrior moratorium by resumed testing.

The prospects for a test ban treaty hinge heavily on the issue of underground tests. Blasts in the atmosphere are relatively easy to detect. But without on-the-spot inspection there is no certain way to distinguish between earth shocks caused by underground nuclear blasts and those due to earthquakes or other natural causes.

In a radio and television interview Sunday night Secretary of State Dean Rusk reiterated the U.S. view that two or three on-site inspections are not enough. There also must be effective arrangements for policing such an agreement, he said, particularly in the vast Asian land mass.

The Western allies have insisted necessary as safeguards against clandestine testing.

Kennedy's announcement that U.S. underground tests are being suspended got a mixed reaction on Capitol Hill.

Clemson Enrolls First Negro

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina's top police officer described the situation as well in hand as Clemson College prepared for the enrollment today of its first Negro student.

State Law Enforcement Division agents, in civilian clothes under Chief J. P. Strom, were supplemented by a force of uniformed state highway patrolmen.

Harvey Gantt, 20, the Negro architectural student whose application to transfer from Iowa State University was upheld by federal courts, planned to enroll in the afternoon.

South Carolina is the last state in the union to desegregate its public schools.

In Charleston Sunday, Gantt heard his minister, the Rev. A. R. Blake, warn that "misunderstanding and division" may come before acceptance. The minister of the Morris Street Baptist Church, where Gantt has taught Sunday School and sung in the choir, said the brotherhood of man cannot be won easily.

Russia Has Armed Combat Groups Stationed In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union has placed four heavily armed combat groups in Cuba and Soviet pilots there are flying MIG fighters capable of carrying nuclear weapons, says Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The continued presence of Soviet armed forces on the island is a "matter of real concern" to the United States, Rusk said Sunday night. But he hewed to the administration line that the Red forces essentially are defensive in nature.

The best U.S. intelligence guess,

Rusk said in a radio and television interview is that there are no nuclear warheads in Cuba. He added, "We have had some indication from the Soviet Union" that at least portions of the combat forces and missiles "will be removed in due course."

Rusk gave no hint that there is any U.S. deadline for Soviet troop removal from Cuba. He said there has been some "out-traffic" in recent weeks and declared: "It must be our policy that penetration of this hemisphere by a Communist regime from outside is unacceptable to this hemisphere."

MIG fighters have been entering Cuba for many months, Rusk said. He also confirmed reports that Soviet pilots are training Cubans to fly them.

Commenting on the Soviet combat groups on the island, Rusk described them as "relatively small" but, nonetheless, "a matter of some real concern."

Several Congress members, primarily Republicans, condemn Soviet military power in Cuba as increasing dangerously. The situation was the subject of a Senate inquiry last week and another Senate probe will be held shortly.

Rusk is to testify today on Soviet military activity in Cuba before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Over the weekend an intelligence summary circulated among top U.S. officials reported that since last fall's crisis only one Soviet ship has put in at a Cuban port with a "significant amount" on military equipment.

Downstate Area Gets More Snow

By The Associated Press
Michigan got more snowfall and sub-zero weather today — and faces the prospect of more of the same for at least the next five days.

As southwestern Michigan grappled with another 2 to 5 inches of new snow, the U. S. Weather Bureau predicted temperatures 14 to 18 degrees below normal for all of Michigan over the next five days.

Normal lows for the Upper Peninsula for the period are 2 to 12 degrees above zero; normal highs 22 to 27. For the Lower Peninsula normal lows range from 7 to 20; highs from 14 to 31.

Occasional snow or flurries are forecast Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Highways, with a few exceptions, were reported in good driving condition despite the additional weekend snow.

Low temperatures ranged from 3 above zero at Detroit to 15 below at Pellston and -8 at Traverse City. Saginaw had -6, Lansing -4, and Flint -2.

In the Upper Peninsula, Marquette registered -12 and Houghton -8.

Beef Snatched

MACON, Ga. (AP) — A truck driver estimated he lost $25,000 worth of quality beef pilfered by motorists after his truck overturned on U.S. 80 Sunday.

Cold In Europe Fatal To 400

LONDON (AP) — Winter's fury continued to lash southeastern Europe today, but elsewhere milder weather brought some relief.

However, freezing temperatures at night turned partly thawed snow into ice and made highways more hazardous again. The latest unofficial toll of deaths attributed to the arctic weather rose to more than 400.

Fresh snow was reported in central Greece, along Italy's Adriatic coast and as far south as Bari, and all across Hungary.

Seven inches of snow were reported in cities along Italy's northeast coast, Lake Traimeno, south of Florence, froze over for the second time this century.

The Greek air force parachuted medical supplies, food and fodder for livestock to several mountain villages in Macedonia, isolated by snow for a week.

Hungarian authorities reported nearly 29 million cubic yards of snow have fallen on Budapest—twice the normal average. Northern and northeastern winds piled up snow drifts over most of Hungary, blocking many highways.

Milan and Rome were sunny but temperatures still ranged down to 24 degrees.

The thaw returned to the Netherlands with the temperature expected to reach 37.

Milder weather continued in Germany, but the overnight low was 23 degrees.

Scholle Replies To Gov. Romney

DETROIT (AP) Michigan AFL-CIO President August Scholle has blasted Gov. George Romney for what he terms "the misuse of his (Romney's) office to recklessly label everyone who disagrees with him as untruthful."

Scholle's criticism was in reply to Romney's attack on Michigan's union publications at the Michigan Press Association meeting in East Lansing Saturday.

Romney, in pledging an all-out campaign for adoption of the proposed new state constitution, charged that the Democratic Party opposes the document because of "rule-or-ruin, all-or-nothing veto bloc leadership."

The Republican governor added that union publications in Michigan have been nothing more than an arm of the official Democratic Party and that the labor press usually takes the stand that it is not the public press and should be left to pursue what it considers labor's aims.

Scholle, in answering Romney's charges Sunday, said the governor "is doing a disservice to efforts toward full and open discussion of the pros and cons of the proposed state constitution by seeking to intimidate with irresponsible attacks on their integrity all who disagree with him."

The union leader saw nothing wrong with "the governor's use of every resource at his command and the full weight of his office to attempt to sell a document in whose shaping he had a decisive hand."

But Scholle said he was disturbed by what he termed "the misuse of his (Romney's) office to recklessly label everyone who disagrees with him as untruthful."

Gas Affects Six On School Bus Trip

ALMA (AP) — Four girls and two boys, members of a Detroit high school "snow trip" bus caravan, spent Sunday night in a hospital here after complaining of nausea from gasoline fumes.

The six, aboard one of four buses which took 37 Cooley High School students to Grayling, went home today. They spent the night in Gratiot Community Hospital.

State police brought a rescuer when the bus stopped at a rest area four miles north of here but found no need for it. They took the six students to the hospital instead.

Home Front Corps Is Newest Baby Of New Frontier

WASHINGTON (AP)—A few top story rooms in an old house on Jackson Square, just a stone's throw from the White House, are the nursery for the newest baby on the New Frontier.

The baby doesn't even have a name yet. Some call it the Domestic Peace Corps. In his budget message, President Kennedy called it the National Service Corps.

"It won't be the National Service Corps," assured one of the youthful planners. "We want something catchier than that."

"You might call us Bobby Kennedy's baby, for now," he added. "The attorney general talked so much about the project that the President made him chairman of the study committee."

Tasks Outlined

At present the group has no official status, but the hope is clear: to have 200 to 500 corpsmen at work by midsummer on such tasks as community development in an Indian reservation, aides in mental hospitals, following migrant workers and helping them adjust to living conditions, helping Cuban refugees who speak little or no English adjust to their new lives, teaching illiterates to read and write and on renewal projects in both urban and rural areas.

Many of the study group are on loan from the Peace Corps, bringing along the lessons of its two years of operation.

An executive order is expected soon to give the program official status, followed by legislation to make it permanent.

Tough plans for the domestic peace corps, or whatever you call it, were drafted by an 11-member committee headed by Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and including five other Cabinet members and Peace Corps Director Sargent Shriver.

They proposed an eventual maximum of about 5,000 corpsmen within five years. Corpsmen would serve for one year, compared to two for the Peace Corps, receiving only a living allowance and modest terminal pay. They would have the option of volunteering for a second year.

For a start, the domestic peace corps has staked out pilot projects in South Dakota, New York City, Massachusetts, Kentucky and California.

In New York City, the Board of Education has asked for 100 corpsmen for project activities ranging from "story hours," led by motherly women, to judo classes for restless boys, led by husky young men.

South Dakota has called for corpsmen to work with 10,000 Oglala Sioux Indians on the Pine Ridge Reservation—to help develop new housing, better farming methods and a better community life.

The State Department of Mental Health in Massachusetts wants volunteers to help with therapy and rehabilitation.

Kentucky, a state with large pockets of economic distress, wants corpsmen as guidance counselor and aides in public schools where dropouts are a problem, in recreation centers and in such specialized fields as health, public administration and city planning.

In California, a pilot project calls for work with the thousands of migrant workers who trek over the state. They would work in the three major crop-growing counties to help the migrants fit into the community.

Six Meet Death In Family Car West Of Flint

FLINT (AP) — Minutes after seeing their father off at Flint Bishop Airport Sunday night, four small children, their mother and a baby-sitter met death in the twisted wreckage of the family car.

Killed in the crash at M-21 and Morrish Road in Clayton Township, six miles west of here, were Mrs. Agnes Pobocik, 32, of suburban Mount Morris; her three daughters, Mary 4, Karen, 3 and Gerry Lee 2, and her son, Andrew A. 3 months, and the family baby-sitter, Shirley Jean Dart, 20, of nearby Swartz Creek.

State police said the Pobocik family was returning from the airport where the father had just boarded a plane for Washington, D.C. Officers said the father, Albert, is a salesman and apparently was to attend a sales meeting in Washington today.

The Pobocik car was sheared in half by the other auto, driven by Leonard C. Baldwin, 29, of Breckenridge. A passenger in the Baldwin car, Leslie Aylsworth, 24, of Owosso, suffered facial cuts and bruises and was reported in fair condition in McLaren Hospital here.

Baldwin and his other passengers, his wife, Elizabeth, 31; William Bowen, 24, and his wife, Bonnie, 19, of Breckenridge, and Aylsworth's wife, Edith, 22, were treated at the hospital and released.

State Police worked well into the night in an attempt to piece together details of the fatal crash. Troopers were unable to identify the victims for more than three hours after the accident was reported.

One witness told police "the two cars were like they were welded together."

State troopers said the scene "was a mess — it's a wonder anyone came out alive." The front end of the death car, including the motor, wheels and fenders, was torn off and hurled 60 feet from the scene.

Britain's Market Future In Hands Of West Germans

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Five Continental friends of Britain fought an 11th-hour battle today to keep alive the British application for Common Market membership and thereby prevent French domination of Western Europe.

The ministers of West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg said privately they knew they were playing for tremendous stakes.

They felt the future of the Common Market, the solidarity of the Western Alliance and the place of the United States and Britain in Continental affairs rested on their efforts. The five gave first priority to maintaining a solid front against French pressure, informants said.

At a meeting with French ministers later today they planned to put forward a compromise proposal—largely the work of the West Germans—to delay a showdown on the British membership issue for at least two or three weeks.

With time, the five thought they could head off radical realignments inside the Western camp which they felt could only give comfort to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in the long run.

The representatives of the five shared the same fear. They are convinced that French President Charles de Gaulle envisages a Western Europe permeated with a Western European mystique, a Western European culture, a Western European identity.

In this struggle the key issue is whether Britain can get into the Common Market. Informants said that if the British are kept out, the French will have won a tremendous victory.

Ironically, the fate of the British membership application seemed

Driver Declared Intoxicated By His Own Doctor

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP) — Police say Frank L. McWethy demanded that his own doctor give him the drunkenness test.

The doctor certified that McWethy was intoxicated and officers booked the 44-year-old Lancaster man on suspicion of drunken driving.

The doctor charged McWethy $10 for the test, police said.

Bishop Agrees To Stop Making His 'Holy Wine'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Bishop St. Psalm, Negro spiritualist who meditated in a coffin, said Sunday he is going to start buying his "holy wine" instead of making it in the church coffin urn. He said the Lord told him to do that.

The self-ordained bishop, whose real name is Bernard Swain, thus called off his battle with Nashville police and the courts. The police had said not "holy wine," but moonshine. The judge said $50.

The 6-foot-4, 240-pound man placed himself in the coffin following the court fine, for fasting and meditation to determine if he should continue his wine making.

Murder Charged In Drinking Bout Shotgun Killing

BIG RAPIDS (AP) — A murder warrant was in preparation today against Nelson Swiger, 68, in the shotgun death of Warren A. Kilpatrick, 32, at nearby Paris.

Mecosta County Prosecutor William A. Harper says it follows the shooting Sunday at Swiger's converted bus home where state police found the body after being summoned by neighbors. The victim lived nearby but had been visiting, authorities said.

Police said Swiger admits firing once at Kilpatrick with a shotgun after a drinking bout.

Moose-Wolf Study On Isle Royale Is Resumed Today

Weather permitting, Dr. Durward Allen and Philip Shelton of Purdue University, Richard Igo of Isle Royale National Park and Don Murray of Northeast Airways, Eveleth, Minn., were to start the 9th winter wildlife study at Isle Royale today.

Dr. Allen will remain on Isle Royale for about a month and Shelton and Murray will remain until about March 15. Igo will return in about 10 days to be replaced successively by District Ranger Pete Parry, District Ranger Bob Peterson, Chief Ranger Jack Raftery and Superintendent Henry Schmidt.

The first wildlife study was conducted in 1953. A summary of knowledge about the moose and wolf up to that time would run about as follows:

1. When the moose first arrived on Isle Royale in about 1912, there was an abundance of balsam fir and American yew — both cherished food plants of the moose. This food source was rapidly disappearing by the 1930's. The "great fire" of 1936 which burned over about one-third of the island created a situation for the development of a successional type vegetation throughout the area.

This successional vegetation consisted of willows, aspen, mountain ash, paper birch, mountain maple, hazelnut and numerous lesser species. Most of these are palatable to moose; thus numerous moose were able to survive after balsam fir and yew had been depleted. If all (or most) of the successional area were browsed, the browse would replenish itself by the growth of lateral buds. However, so little of the available browse is being utilized that much of the vegetation is now growing to heights beyond the reach of the moose. Therefore, less and less vegetation becomes available for the moose.

Prefer Swamp Areas
2. The relationship observations of wolf to moose during the winter presents several relevant facts: Moose (especially cows with calves) harbor close to swamp areas. Swamps contain a very soft, loose snow cover which would favor the moose and hamper a wolf. On crusted snow, however, the heavy moose would break through the crust while the wolf could maneuver quite well on the crust surface. On equal footing, it is the opinion of most observers that wolves are reluctant to tangle that the wolves have kept the moose herd within its food supply, culled out undesirable individuals, and stimulated reproduction. Wolves and moose are expected to remain in dynamic equilibrium, although the moose herd may decline in the next decade due to the imminent escape of a large proportion of the browse."

Beaver Study
Philip Shelton, currently involved in the study is the second graduate student of Dr. Allen to tackle Isle Royale wildlife. Shelton's major work has been with the beaver and its relation to other animals and plants of the natural community. Eighty-three beavers were live-trapped and tagged by Phil Shelton last summer, mostly in the Rock Harbor-Tobin Harbor area. Several of those caught were wearing tags acquired during the 1961 season. These beavers provide data on their movements and growth since their original captures. The largest beaver caught in 1962 weighed 47 pounds, two pounds less than the largest of the 91 beavers caught in 1961.

With experience gained from live-trapping and intensive studies of food resources on a limited number of colonies, mostly in the northeastern part of the island, Shelton has attempted to analyze the beaver food resources, particularly of aspen, and interpret the signs of beaver activity, past and present, that exist over the remainder of the island. In addition to the foot-work, a 17-hour aerial survey, combining a moose calf count and a beaver colony count, was flown by Jack Burgess of Tower, Minn., and Phil Shelton from Oct. 17 to 20. They found 128 moose, including 15 calves and about 120 active beaver colonies.

The winter study this year will begin as usual at the end of January, and continue for about seven weeks. Headquarters will again be at Windigo, where several improvements in facilities were made last fall. Don Murray of Mountain Iron, Minn., will pilot the aircraft again this year, his fifth year on the project.

The object of the current studies, in addition to gaining "pure knowledge" about wildlife, is to procure information which will help in managing, protecting and interpreting Isle Royale National Park. The original - and current - intention of the National Park Service is to maintain its areas in as nearly a "natural condition as possible. Man has created great imbalances and eradicated the "natural" scene to make way for cities and towns, highways, factories and farms. The plant and animal communities which preceded man were in accord with the prevailing climate and topography. Each species population was in dynamic equilibrium with the other populations — that is, each population would vary in its numbers and create a cyclic pattern of "ups-and-downs." Occasionally a species would die out altogether because of disease, an overpowering competitor, or an overpowering predator.

The National Parks were set aside so all generations can view the natural world in an untampered condition.

Hanna Gains In Battle To Curb Stream Pollution

In cooperation with the Water Resources Commission the Hanna Mining Co., is nearing success in its effort to abate pollution in the Iron and Brule rivers, according to Loring F. Oeming, commission executive secretary.

Cause of the pollution is mine drainage water containing a high percentage of iron in solution. The company has been pumping this water from a previously shut down mine in an effort to prevent flooding in a nearby newly opened iron mine. Excess water must be kept out of the new mine for the safety of the miners and also to reduce the cost of mining operations.

Earlier attempts to solve the problem by detention in specially built settling ponds and by dilution had been unsuccessful. In addition, analysis of chemical methods for precipitating the iron showed them to hold little promise, according to the mining company.

The company is now in the process of drilling a 10-inch test well near the site of the new mine. This well will be used to determine whether a sufficient amount of fresh water can be pumped out each day to prevent the present underground water level from rising. The water level must be maintained at a height which will minimize seepage pressure on the ore body along its outcrop under the glacial drift.

Company officials expect completion of the test well by Feb. 1. If it proves satisfactory, a production well will be drilled and pumping operations discontinued at the old mine. Should the test well prove unsatisfactory, test drilling operations will continue but the company will then undertake a crash program of excavating to the water level and plan to pump from the exposed water surface. In anticipation of completing its excavating before the water rise at the old mine could reach the new mine, it will make every effort to terminate the old mine jumping on Feb. 15.

Fishing Conditions

Continued frigid weather has greatly reduced fishing pressure throughout the district. However, those stout-hearted enough to brave the elements continued to catch a fair number of fish.

Some excellent catches of good size perch have been made on Hulbert Lake using perch eyes for bait and fishing in about 30 feet of water. Fishing has picked up in the Les Cheneaux area. Pike spearing has been good on Muscallonge Bay, and several nice catches have been reported. Perch fishing continued good in Hessel Bay—fish are of jumbo size—and are being taken on wigglers. About 30 shanties are out on Hessel Bay.

Some shanties have been removed from Dodge Lake, Schoolcraft County, since the surge of interest following the taking of the "trophy" size fish, but one fisherman reports seeing a "four footer" which he was unable to spear.

Fishing pressure on the Seney Refuge waters has been very light, however, reports have been received on a 31 and a 36" northern being taken.

South Manistique Lake and Big Manistique Lake have continued to produce a fair number of northern pike. Walleye success has slowed down somewhat. A few whitefish are still being taken on the South lake, with an occasional limit catch.

State Employees Urged To Oppose New Constitution

William Cook, president of the Michigan State Employees' Association set forth the reason why the MSEA is opposed to the new state constitution to be voted April 1 in an address to the annual joint dinner meeting of MEA Chapter 58 of Escanaba and the Bay de Noc State Credit Union at Marco's Saturday night.

Cook, winding up a tour of the Upper Peninsula, addressed an overflow audience.

He stressed that the safeguarding of a strong civil service system was one of the foremost objectives of the Association and related the circumstances of the establishment of a civil service system in Michigan, pointing out that the people themselves had by constitutional amendment insisted on the establishment of a Civil Service Commission independent and not subservient to the Michigan Legislature.

The people's insistence upon this independence stemmed from a long history of failures on the part of the Legislature to provide a satisfactory civil service program, said Cook. This failure reached a climax when the Ripper Act of 1939 mangled statutory civil service.

The civil service program now in effect is one of the finest in the United States and has served as a model for other states, said Cook. The proposed constitution, he charged, would weaken Michigan's civil service program.

He cited specific instances of such weakening:

1. Ultimate control of any salary increases would be placed in the hands of the Legislature.

2. The Legislature could by a two-thirds vote veto a civil service directive granting wage and salary increases for state employees.

3. Under the proposed constitution positions could be both created and abolished by department heads without approval of the Civil Service Commission. This, Cook contended, could again lead to a type of "spoils system."

The Michigan State Employees' Association is an independent group not aligned with any political party. In the present campaign against the proposed constitution it proclaims concern with the maintenance of the present merit system of civil service and professes not to be opposing the proposed constitution for some of the reasons advanced by other opposition groups. It has not taken a stand on such items as tax structure, state and local government, apportionment, etc.

Cook was introduced by Leo Rahoi, president of Chapter 58.

The Bay de Noc State Credit Union elected Miss Emma McDonough to the Credit Committee; Rupert Primiski to the Supervisory Committee and Jay Bastian and Dr. Leonard Vader as directors.

The credit union now serves state employees in most Upper Peninsula counties and reported a gain of about 50 members to 471, and 10 per cent increase in assets over last year to $192,701.

Wisconsin Mills Race Fuel Crisis In Gas Cut-Off

Several weeks of severe cold have created a fuel crisis in Wisconsin paper mills on the Fox and Wisconsin Rivers which had converted to natural gas, reports Phil Oakwood of DePere, Wis., vice president of Gustafson Oil Co., which is giving many of the mills emergency supplies of heavy heating oils.

Heavy industries in the areas, explained Oakwood, have been on a natural gas rate base which has been attractive to them, because the service is interruptible. Home heating demands on gas pipe lines have been so heavy during the severely cold weather, said Oakwood, that delivery capacity has been exceeded and the pipe line companies have cut off their big industrial users in order to keep homes warm.

Heavy Oil Burned

The situation, said the oil company executive, is a new one and one with serious implications for Wisconsin and Upper Peninsula industries which convert to gas fuel. Industries which have done this have installed stand-by equipment which can burn heavy oil in emergencies like the present one when their natural gas service is interrupted because of the excessive demands of firm rate customers like homeowners.

For two weeks, Oakwood reported, industrial users in the areas described had their gas service interrupted 90 per cent of the time. Two weeks ago they were cut off and given service again on Thursday or Friday and last week they were cut off again.

"We have to truck heavy oil (No. 6) to a big paper mill every three hours to keep it going in such a situation," said Oakwood. "That means 7 or 8 big loads of oil a day. And with 20 paper mills all off gas, where do we get the trucks to haul that much oil in a hurry?"

Converted Year Ago

"This is the first winter that we have experienced such a gas crisis. The mills converted to gas a year ago and this is the first severe weather test of the system. The firm load is sold to residences and the surplus is sold to industry and under its contracts service can be cut off on a few hours notice.

"I can see where the Upper Peninsula, if it had 20 big industries burning gas from the Sault to Ironwood and was suddenly cut off would have a very serious problem because of the mileage involved. The Wisconsin mills are supplied with heavy oil out of Green Bay, Milwaukee or St. Paul-Minneapolis, so the minimum haul is about 100 miles. The heavy oil suppliers are Gustafson Oil Co., Empire Petroleum Co., of Sheboygan; Hughes Oil Co. of Milwaukee, Northwestern Refining Co. of Minneapolis and Murphy Corp. of Superior, Wis.

Gustafson has tankage at Escanaba, several Wisconsin cities and Minneapolis. "We're going to empty our storage if this cold keeps up for a couple more weeks," said Oakwood.

"I have one answer to the problem. We will go to industry on gas and say if you want protection when you're cut off gas we have got to have a contract saying that you will take X number of gallons every winter so that we can put it in storage and have enough equipment ready to deliver it. We are depleting our winter reserves and will have to replace them by railing in oil at a higher cost than lake tanker movement. We will have to take a loss on it.

"In the Denver area oil companies sign contracts to supply gas customers who pay a premium price one cent a gallon over the market price to get this stand-by service.

"Some of the Wisconsin interruptible rate gas customers are very large industrial fuel users. We had to call the Wisconsin Public Service Commission and explain the situation and they told us to haul oil to them in the emergency in trucks no matter whether they had been authorized by the commission to be in this business or not.

"Industrial gas customers in the Green Bay area have been cut off before, but in the last year and a half there has been a lot of conversion from coal in the Wisconsin River Valley mills."

A Report Of Service To The Community During 1962

As we begin a new year, it is customary to reflect upon the old year and to evaluate our services. We at the State Bank of Escanaba believe our services for 1962 are contained in this report to you, the community. We are proud of our record and the confidence you have demonstrated in us during the past year, which made this record possible.

The most important service of a bank is to provide a safe depository for the savings of the community. During 1962 you deposited over $3,300,000.00 in savings accounts at our bank. We paid you over $140,000.00 in interest, the largest amount ever paid in one year during our entire 60 year history.

The granting of loans is also one of the important functions of our bank. It is this process of putting the savings of a community to work by making loans that makes a community grow and prosper. During 1962 we granted over 2,700 loans totaling over $4,700,000.00 to businesses, farmers, churches, organizations, and individuals, for short term working capital, the purchase of homes, cars, appliances and many other purposes.

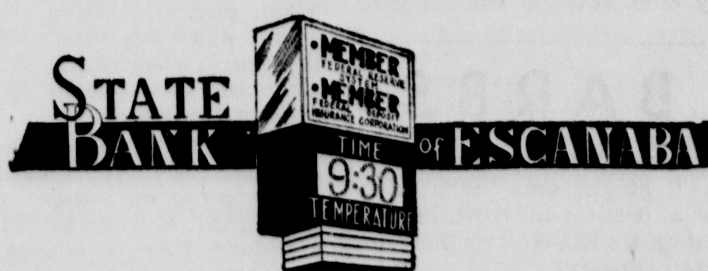

Some requests for loans were not granted because we, at the State Bank of Escanaba are always mindful that in addition to our responsibility to lend money to customers, we have the responsibility to use our experience and knowledge to be helpful and advise. If we feel a borrower is extending his credit to a point which will bear a hardship on his family, his business or his future credit rating, we feel it is our duty to so advise and refuse the loan. This procedure is not always accepted in the best spirits by the borrower, but although we may have sacrificed a few dollars in profit, it is gratifying for us to know that this refusal was in his best interest. We are also mindful that the money we lend belongs to our depositors and that we have pledged ourselves to always consider our prime obligation which is the safety of our depositors' funds.

Another important function of a bank is to provide checking account facilities for the community. During 1962 we cleared through checking accounts at our bank over 350,000 checks totaling more than $50,000,000.00. This represents part of the flow of money in the community to purchase goods and services.

The bank provides many other services for the community too. Some are not as widely used as the major services mentioned above, but they are nevertheless important. For example, during 1962 we issued over 13,000 bank money orders. We sold over 3,000 Series "E" U.S. Savings Bonds. We also sold Series "H" U.S. bonds valued over $45,000.00. This is a free service to the public and the U.S. Treasury. Also, during the year we purchased and sold for our customers over 12,400 shares of stock.

We feel these figures represent a sound and progressive banking service to the community. We are pleased that you, the citizens of the Escanaba area gave us the opportunity to serve you in so many ways in 1962.

It is our sincere desire to improve this record during 1963. We are grateful for your past patronage and we earnestly solicit the opportunity to serve you with helpful, friendly and courteous banking service during 1963.

Safety Means More

The Escanaba Division of Mead Corp. and the Escanaba Division of Harnischfeger Corp. have been honored by the National Safety Council, their own corporate organizations and other agencies for achievement of one million man hours of work without a loss time accident.

The record is an unusual one in any situation and hard to come by. It has been achieved only thrice, for instance, in the whole history of the Harnischfeger Corp., embracing more than 75 years. To have two of Escanaba's leading industries both achieve this record in the same period is a most unusual thing.

The managements, which provided the safe machines and the safety programs, were quick to explain that the teamwork of their supervisory personnel and their workers was magic combination which was chiefly responsible for the achievement. Robert Barron, safety coordinator for Escanaba Division of Mead, said the greatest single factor in safety is employee attitude; that the company can protect the machines but it can't protect the worker unless he wishes it so and cooperates.

At Harnischfeger Martin Proehl, safety director, cited the cooperation of supervisory personnel and union representatives in a safety program which encourages the tagging of any equipment or tool deemed dangerous. Tagged equipment can't be used until the hazard is eliminated.

The companies and their foremen, safety officials and workers who have achieved these records have achieved much more than the familiar result of avoiding injury or death; loss of wages, production and wellbeing. These are important and very worthwhile goals and they are very hard to attain because it's difficult to dramatize the negative. An accident that doesn't happen doesn't get anyone excited. It is only after an accident happens that people usually get cautious, concerned and wise with the wisdom of hindsight.

The Escanaba Area workers of Mead and Harnischfeger have each worked more than a million man hours without a single lost time accident. This shows both an adaptability and a mental attitude toward employment that is valuable all around. It would impress an employer anywhere with the quality of personnel that could post such a record and with a community in which two major industries would fly their million safe hours flags of the National Safety Council in the same breeze.

Industrial forces which can prevent accidents, those subtle villains of the machine age, can do many other things. They evidence an awareness and a caution which are a fine fruit of thought.

The safety campaign has its origins in humanity, but it has many economic benefits, too. The total of human misery and loss which is prevented by this work is enormous and one of the finest products of modern industry. The enormity of the accomplishment is shown by contrast.

Industrial operations paradoxically have become more hazardous but safer. Workers deal with higher electric voltages, faster machinery, larger volumes of work, movement of heavier masses, and a faster tempo of operation. But safety schooling and learning have not only overcome the increased hazard but made it less costly than it used to be when it was smaller.

The Escanaba Division of Mead in 1924 had only about 200 employees compared with the 600 who made the million man hours safety record in 1962 and yet in 1924 the Division had 76 lost time accidents and 51 sub-major accidents. Harnischfeger has been operating in Escanaba for 16 years. Never, when it had fewer employees, was it able to work a million hours without an injury, but with 900 employees co-operating it has managed it now.

Their safety records are a cause for congratulations to these two fine industries and for community pride.

The Doctor Says:

Rheumatic Fever In Many Guises

By Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Rheumatic fever has been rightly called the most threatening disease of childhood. It usually hits children between 5 and 15. There is growing evidence that susceptibility to this disease is greater in some families than in others.

Recent studies indicate that children with acute rheumatic fever have a high level of gamma globulin in their blood. Although gamma globulin is usually regarded as a protective substance, the amounts found in these children are regarded as excessive. Furthermore, their close relatives have also been found to have high gamma globulin.

This disease usually starts with a streptococcal sore throat, but the course of the disease is so variable and the rheumatic aspect (inflamed joints) is so inconsistent that the very name "rheumatic fever" often leads to confusion. After the sore throat and fever have subsided, the streptococcus seems to smolder like a fire that has been only partially extinguished. In other words: it elaborates its poison at a greatly reduced rate, but this poison circulates in the blood. After a variable period of two to six weeks it may attack different parts of the body.

If it attacks the joints, it leads in some children to acute swelling and redness and in others to mild aching pains that cause the child to sit around listlessly. He becomes irritable, and refuses to play. Many a child has been punished for being naughty when, in reality, he was suffering from mild rheumatic fever. Sometimes a grandmother has said of such a child that he had "growing pains." We now know that there is no such thing, and that most children with "growing pains" have rheumatic fever.

If the streptococcal poison attacks the nervous system, chorea (St. Vitus' dance) develops. This may last for two to six months, then clear up.

The most serious complication stamps are stuck, guess who else of all is rheumatic heart disease.

because this may lead to permanent disability.

Some children who get the joint involvement never get rheumatic heart disease, some get the heart disease without any joint pains, and some get both. Since streptococcal infections confer no lasting immunity recurrences are common, and with each recurrence the danger of serious heart involvement increases.

Fortunately, such involvement can be prevented by giving penicillin, which kills the streptococci, for the acute infection and preventive injections of slow-acting penicillin every month for at least five years following an attack. During the acute stage, the child must be kept in bed. But recent studies have shown that when the acute phase is over, it is harmful rather than helpful to put severe limitations on the child's activities.

If the joints were involved and the pain and swelling have subsided, leaving no evidence of heart disease, there is no need to make any restrictions on activity. If there has been a rheumatic heart involvement and the acute phase is over, almost any kind of noncompetitive sport can be engaged in, such as walking, swimming, rowing, bowling. It is necessary only to avoid overfatigue.

Washington Comment

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—When White House aide Theodore Sorenson rose to address a gathering of top party Democrats in Washington, he had some fun with John Bailey, Democratic national chairman. Said Sorenson:

"John Bailey has asked me to announce that a meeting of the (national convention) site committee will be held this afternoon to give fair and impartial consideration to the bids of all interested cities."

"The meeting will be held in (Chicago) Mayor Daley's suite."

Air Force Secretary Eugene Zuckert, asked to make a presentation at the Touchdown Club to Giant football star Y. A. I'm really a refugee from a political science classroom," Minnesota Sen. Hubert Humphrey confessed to the Democratic National Committee meeting in Washington.

"In early 1960 I had planned to eat my meals at the White House," the former professor declared, "but I have now settled for the Tuesday morning club breakfasts there with the other Democratic congressional leaders."

Pennsylvania's famous and venerable Democratic National Committee woman Emma Guffey Miller asked President Kennedy's congressional liaison man P. Kenneth O'Donnell: "How do we National Committee Members contact the White House? What secretary do we call—Lawrence O'Brien? Pierre Salinger? Or whom?"

Demonstrating the quick thinking and fast footwork that makes him a valuable political aide, O'Donnell got out of answering an embarrassing question by replying, "Don't bother to call us, Mrs. Miller. Let us call you."

But the unsinkable Mrs. Miller had the last words. "I've tried to call you, too," she told O'Donnell, "but you never answered the phone or called me back."

With advent of the 88th Congress, freshmen members are going through the harrowing experience of selecting the best news medium for keeping their constituents back home informed of what goes on in Washington. Eldersmen usually suggest a nice old-fashioned gossip-type weekly or bimonthly newsletter, with a few more-or-less essential modern refinements.

Prime examples of some of these souped-up versions are put out by Congressmen Bob Reifel of South Dakota, Elizabeth Kee of West Virginia and Jim Wright of Texas.

Titles of their respective newsletters are: "Reifel Shots," "Keenotes," and last but not least, "The Wright Slant on Washington."

Blizzards Affect Food In Japan

TOKYO (AP)—Serious food shortages have developed in Japan because of blizzards that have crippled transportation in widespread sections of the country. Helicopters carried food and medical supplies to some isolated communities.

Police reported that 37 persons died in the snowstorms that hit Japan's west central coast. Most of them perished in avalanches or in the wreckage of houses crushed by the weight of the snow that has fallen continuously for two weeks. Drifts are 12 feet high in places.

Joseph Bulski, of Niagara Falls, an onlooker, said he was "disappointed in the way it fell."

U.S. Tax Suit Against Woman Involves City

MANISTIQUE — The suit of the federal government against Gladys Edwards, one-time owner of Fayette and other properties in Manistique, to recover unpaid income taxes has involved the City of Manistique, the State of Michigan, Schoolcraft County and Helga Berglund Sunberg.

Gladys Edwards, also known under four aliases as Annie G. Edwards, Anne Edwards, Elizabeth Travis and Liz Travis, is formerly of Detroit and is now believed to reside in Ottawa, Canada.

Unable to locate her within the District, the U.S. marshal was granted a motion for service by publication through federal court at Marquette. Further action is expected to develop in federal district court there at the April term.

Highway Frontage

Proof of publication has been filed there and Gladys Edwards can be compelled to make some answer or the foreclosure on her properties in Manistique can be made. The federal government suit is for $166,696 for unpaid income taxes for the period 1945-51.

William F. Hood, Manistique city attorney, said the city is retaining its interest based on general and special assessment property taxes. The State of Michigan and Schoolcraft County have relinquished any claims in the case, Hood has been informed.

Mrs. Edwards has a 200-foot deep by 700-and-some-feet frontage on U.S. 2 across from Lake Michigan here. There is an old lodge building on it and had a few small tourist cabins, some of which were dilapidated and scheduled to be removed under the city unsafe structure ordinance.

Assessment Due City

The city has $1,520 coming on the special $2 a front foot special assessment for a sanitary sewer project in the area in 1959-60. The city claims the project was in good faith, assessment was at less than cost, that it did not know of the government's claim as nothing had been filed at the time, the property has been improved as a result of the sewer project and abrogation of the city claim would result in "inequitable and unjust windfall" to the federal government. Also owed the city are general property taxes of $66 a year for 1958-61, sewer bond and interest taxes of $13.20 for each of the years and yearly penalty of $3.17. The 1962 tax was $56 and sewer bond and interest tax, $11.20 with $2.68 penalty. Interest is 6 per cent.

The U.S. 2 property was deeded by Gladys Edwards to Liz Travis in March, 1955 with revenue stamps of $9.90, indicating sale for between $8500 and $9,000. However, the property, obtained by Mrs. Edwards in 1947, was listed for sale by a realtor at $23,000 in July, 1955.

Thus the federal government claims this was done spuriously, as her attorney, Charles H. Hower of Detroit was at the time negotiating on a settlement of the tax claim. It also claims there is no such person as Liz Travis. The federal government claim was filed June 27, 1962.

The government lien was filed Aug. 3, 1956, and at that time the property was listed under Liz Travis, not Gladys Edwards. Notice of the lien claim against Mrs. Edwards was filed Feb. 1, 1962.

Under Three Counts

The government has three counts in its bill of complaint. They are:

1. Elizabeth Travis is a non-existent person and the deed to her is a nullity and void and Gladys Edwards is still the owner.

2. The deed was intended to convey only legal title and Gladys Edwards still retains the real value, and Travis only holds the title in trust.

3. Gladys Edwards was involved in negotiations with the U.S. government at the time the deed was made and it was not for a fair consideration, thus constituting a fraud on creditors, as Mrs. Edwards was insolvent at the time.

Manistique Has Failure In City Water Supply

MANISTIQUE—This community was without water for one and one-half hours Saturday night when two pump contacts burned out and service was interrupted due to the failure of the pumps.

City fire trucks were brought to the Indian River at the water intake sit and about 500,000 gallons of water were pumped directly from the river into the reservoir and water tower. As a result there was no chlorination of the water and people were asked to boil their water during a period of about 12 hours.

Crews worked until about 9 a.m. Sunday repairing the damage and the cost was about $400. Effective today the Edison Soo Electric Co. will assist the city in thawing water lines from the curb stops to buildings. Extreme cold has caused many frozen lines within the city.

Son Of Grandma Is Painter Too

EAGLE BRIDGE, N.Y. (AP)—When Grandma Moses died more than a year ago, she left behind more than her prized paintings and a stiller brush. Her heritage may well include a painting dynasty.

The world of art regarded Grandma Moses—Anna Mary Robertson Moses—as one of the nation's most renowned primitive style painters when she died in Eagle Bridge on Dec. 13, 1961 at the age of 101.

Now there is a "Grandpa Moses" on the American scene. He is Forrest King Moses and a painter apparently cut from the same canvas as his mother.

Moses will be 70 on his next birthday and has 14 grandchildren. He was a painter long before his mother's death, quite unlike Grandma Moses who took up painting only in the sunset of her life.

But Moses was determined not to benefit from his mother's success. Many of his paintings bear the name "Forrest King" and there are those who still are unaware of his connection with Grandma Moses.

Like those of his mother, most of the Grandpa Moses paintings have a certain sprightliness of subject matter and color. He chooses for subjects those rural scenes from what has come to be recognized as Grandma Moses country.

Though she took to it late in life, painting is a tradition in Grandma Moses' family.

The talent extends to Grandpa Moses' grandchildren, so much so that the Grandma Moses shadow may extend over American art for years to come.

William Hints At Race Against Romney In 1964

WASHINGTON (AP)—G. Mennen Williams, Michigan's former six-term Democratic governor, thinks Republican Gov. George Romney would be "a good man to run against" in 1964.

Williams, now assistant secretary of state for African affairs, says Romney "is a very capable man," adding, however, "I think his work with the Constitutional Convention wasn't all that it might have been. He didn't go through with equal apportionment, and things of that kind, so that disappointed me, frankly, but he has yet to make his record."

Williams' comments on the man who last November defeated his successor, Democratic Gov. John B. Swainson, came Sunday on a program taped for television. He was interviewed by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

To Scott's question as to whether he believes Romney has made "a good start," as governor, Williams replied, "I honestly don't know."

Williams previously has said he is willing to run against Romney in 1964 if President Kennedy considered the governorship more important than his present State Department post.

March Of Dimes Envelopes Should Be Returned Soon

Myron T. Austad, county chairman for the National Foundation, today reminded county residents to return the March of Dimes envelopes.

"We need every contribution we can get to help provide medical care for children with birth defects and arthritis. Please take time out now to drop your envelope in the mailbox—with your contribution of course," he said.

The seriousness of this national problem he said, is apparent from the fact that 250,000 children are born each year with significant birth defects, and there are thousands of children among some 11 million Americans afflicted by arthritis or rheumatic disease.

In addition, millions of dollars are still needed each year to aid the thousands of persons paralyzed by polio.

Income At G. M. Sets Record

NEW YORK (AP)—General Motors Corp. today reported record profit for any company for any 12-month period.

The nation's No. 1 automaker estimated 1962 net income at $1,459 billion, equal to $5.10 a share, or up more than 60 per cent from 1961 earnings of $893 million or $3.11 a share.

GM's previous high was $1,189 billion in 1955, the auto industry's best year. That also was the first time any firm ever topped the billion-dollar mark in profits.

GM sales last year were estimated at $14.6 billion compared with $11.4 billion in 1961 and the previous high of $12.7 billion in 1960.

The record one-year profit for a company was $1,428,736,000 earned by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1962. That company has not yet released figures for calendar 1962. In 1961 AT&T cleared $1,284,586,000.

Sales of cars and trucks in 1962, the company said, totaled 5,239,000 units, 4 per cent above the previous record year of 1955 and 30 per cent higher than the 4,037,000 units sold in 1961.

Net income is the figure arrived at after money is put aside for taxes and other things. GM said U.S. and foreign taxes for 1962 will total an estimated $1,475,000,000, compared with $875 million in 1961.

Dividends last year also were a record amount—$3 a share being paid to holders of common stock.

The company said the $850 million in common stock dividends is the largest amount ever paid by an industrial firm.

In 1961, dividends of $2.50 per share were paid on GM common stock. That was GM's previous high.

No Clues Found In Killing At Bloomfield Hills

BLOOMFIELD HILLS (AP)—Police drew a blank today in their search for clues to the sniper who shot and killed Mrs. Mary Godfrey at her Bloomfield Township home Friday night.

Police Chief Norman Dehnke said no good leads were uncovered although anxious citizens flooded police headquarters with "tip calls" and officer leaves had been cancelled to keep the full force on the job.

Mrs. Godfrey, 38, Baptist church choir singer and mother of five children, was shot by a .22 caliber rifle fired through a kitchen window.

The slaying caused tension in this Oakland County area in view of a sniper's activities dating back at least four weeks. No one else was hit, but two women reportedly had been sniped at in their homes.

Home owners kept their porch lights on at night over the weekend. Some also had flood lights on.

Dehnke, who heads the 19-man force, ordered a night-long two-car patrol.

Ann Landers

Wives, Beware Of Your Best Friend

Dear Ann Landers: I received in the morning mail three copies of your column. The headline read, "Never mind your enemies, Madame, keep your eye on your best friend." The afternoon mail will be here at 3:00 p. m. There will probably be others.

Why must people be so cruel? If I wish to pretend not to see, what business is it of theirs?

I have four young children who need their father. And, frankly, I need a husband. I'm no good alone. For the past six years my husband has been having an affair with my best friend, an attractive widow. To put it bluntly, I'm sorer for her than I am for myself. She's throwing her life away on a man who will never marry her.

So, let this letter serve as an open reply to those women who mailed me your column. After weighing and measuring, meditating and soul-searching I've decided to live my life as I think best for me and my children.—BLIND BY CHOICE

Dear Blind: Thank you for your letter and I hope your anonymous "friends" all see it.

Dear Ann: The letter from "Silent But Certain" was a slice of life. The woman wrote, "If you have a best friend, watch out because she's probably having an affair with your husband." Here's my story:

During 15 years of marriage I never glanced sideways—that is, until a new executive joined my husband's firm. He was handsome, fascinating, sophisticated and I was smitten like a schoolgirl. That look in his eye let me know he was reading me, and the return was "yes".

The way to "get acquainted," I strategized, was to invite him and his wife for dinner. She and I would become friends—the same old story. The stage was set.

One look at Mrs. H. chilled my ardor instantly. They arrived late and boring. He gave her long looks which she ignored. Their relationship was obviously a horror. How could HE have chosen HER?

The gentleman has never looked good to me since that night. So, perhaps, it's not such a bad idea after all. Girls, get to know the man's wife.—WHITE PLAINS

Dear White Plains: Here's another letter, same subject, different twist:

Dear Ann: "Silent But Certain" spoke one of those frank truths which everyone knows in his heart of hearts, but you never expect to see it in print.

After 18 years of marriage, my wife confessed she was having an affair with—of all people—her best friend's husband. No, she didn't want a divorce. And neither did he. There were six children involved. Would I stand by until the fire burned itself out? I told her, "Yes, I would try."

The next day I telephoned the other man's wife and invited her to my office for a chat. She had known—instinct, she called it, and was pretending not to see. I admired her character and her courage. And I noticed for the first time how terribly attractive she was.

You guessed it. We've been comforting each other ever since and

I hope my wife never gets tired of the other guy.—NOT GRIEVING

Dear Not Grieving: You didn't ask for advice, so I won't give you any. In five words, however—you all deserve each other.

Dear Ann Landers: You and your great big mouth. I telephoned my best friend this morning to ask if she had read your column. She replied, "Yes, and I think Ann Landers is crazy. I wouldn't have your husband if we had an atomic war and he was the only man left."

This was a catty insult and I really let her have it. Maybe you do a lot of good, but today you broke up a 12 year friendship.—MAXINE

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Versatile Parka

By HELEN HENNESSY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
Many of the men's casual warmers this winter have been inspired by the active ski wear worn on the slopes of the United States and Europe.

The new parkas, for instance, are made with the authentic drawstring bottom. Most are reversible, and they come in almost every imaginable outerwear shell. You'll find quilted nylons, poplins, wools, man-made fleeces and woven gabardines. Bright colors and strong patterns are predominant.

Another expression of the ski-wear influence is to be found in the knee-length "after-ski" coats. One versatile jacket serves a double purpose. Made of quilted nylon and inner-lined with light, warm dacron polyester, it is designed for both active and spectator sportsmen. It can be worn at three-quarter length by the man whose approach to sports is a seat in the stadium next to his best girl, and the bottom section can be neatly folded up and snapped into place to make a hip-length jacket for the more active sportsman.

It goes without saying that most of this "ski" attire will be seen on college campuses, in supermarkets and weekends, and in the parks when pop takes the kids for an afternoon outing.

But whether or not the clothes ever see a ski slope, they've taken the male population by storm.

This jacket of quilted blue nylon can be worn either three-quarter or hip lengths. The bottom section neatly snaps up underneath.

Menominee Boxers Dominate Opening Bouts In Tourney

Dewaine Dixon Wins 126 Pound Open Title

Menominee boxers dominated the opening bouts of the Upper Peninsula Golden Gloves tournament here Saturday night, slamming out seven victories on the 11-fight card at the Holy Name gym.

The program was highlighted by an open division featherweight championship scrap won by Manistique's Dewaine Dixon who dethroned Frank Ciriza of K.I. Sawyer Air Base.

Saturday night's fights set the stage for the U. P. finals which will be held on Feb. 2 at Holy Name. Upper Peninsula champions will be crowned in 15 weight classes, with the winners earning the right to advance to the Green Bay bouts on Feb. 11 to face the winners of the Fond du Lac tournament.

The Menominee Boxing Club took a big stride toward retaining its Upper Peninsula team championship on the opening night. Coach Bobby Hansen's well conditioned boxers were the class of the night, winning seven fights and losing only two.

Dave Richards, Escanaba novice 126 pounder, turned in one of the outstanding performances of the night in registering two decisions.

Richards overcame a long left hand by Bill Lindahl with steady combination punches to earn a narrow decision in his first start. He came back to whip hard hitting Ken Derouin of Menominee in his second bout. Richards gained his edge in the first round when he fired a straight right to the head to drop Derouin for a nine count. The Menominee boxer finished strong but couldn't overcome Richards' early advantage.

Derouin had scored a second round TKO over Phil Ansell of Manistique, dropping his foe with a solid right in the second round. Sid Beaudou of Menominee scored the only knockout of the night when he decked Dale Dufour of Manistique at 1:08 of the first round with a right hand haymaker after throwing bombs from the opening bell.

Ted Beaudou, Menominee novice welter, also registered two victories. He threw too many punches for Escanaba's Doug Fix in his first bout and came back to decision his teammate, Jerry Bohan, in the final bout of the night. Bohan was impressive in beating stocky Rudy Burney of K. I. Sawyer in an early fight.

Menominee's Jerry Demuse also advanced in the 147 novice class, hooking with both hands to beat Lorin Blowers of Escanaba. Middleweight Bob Kacynski of Menominee was in command all the way while decisioning Dennis Miller of Escanaba.

Manistique's Don Rochefort eliminated Don Kallio of the Escanaba team in a 135 open division fight. Rochefort punched inside Kallio's sweeping swings to draw blood from his opponent's nose and mouth in the first two rounds. Kallio was stronger in the third round but his rally came too late.

Dixon, one of Manistique's veteran titlists, was the stronger puncher against Ciriza and offset his foe's stabbing left jab with left hooks and looping rights to the head. Ciriza countered effectively and showed the class that had earned him a Texas Golden Gloves championship and a trip to the Chicago tournament two years ago. Dixon finished strong in the third round to catch the decision of the judges.

Summary:
126 — Ken Derouin, Menominee

Marvelous Marv Named 'Good Guy'

NEW YORK (AP)—The saga of "Marvelous Marv" Throneberry promises to develop into one of baseball's most fascinating stories. Throneberry was just a run-of-the-mill ball player with the New York Mets until Jim Becker, an Associated Press sports writer, pinned the "Marvelous Marv" tag on him last year.

The label found immediate acceptance with his teammates and fans. Soon it was "Marvelous Marv" that was "Marvelous Marv" that. "Overnight Throneberry became a drawing card. He continued to mess up plays on occasion, but when he did the fans generally hollered good-naturedly "that's Marvelous Marv for you."

Another chapter in the "Marvelous Marv" story came Sunday night when Throneberry hardly anyone calls him that anymore—received the Ben Epstein Memorial "Good Guy" award at the annual dinner of the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association.

He brought roars of laughter from the crowd, including his boss, Manager Casey Stengel, when he finished his short acceptance speech.

"They told me not to stand up here too long holding this plaque," Marvelous Marv said. "I might drop it."

Maury Wills, of the Los Angeles Dodgers, received the Sid Mercer Memorial Award as Player of the Year for his record 104 stolen bases.

Max Carey, 73-year-old member of the Hall of Fame whose 738 career stolen bases still is a National League record, received the Retroactive Award and Roy Hamer, general manager of the Yankees, the William J. Slocum Memorial Award for long and meritorious service to baseball.

Tork Expects 17-Foot Vault

BOSTON (AP)—The 17-foot pole vault isn't very far away, says one of a flock of new stars in the soaring specialty.

Ex-Marine Dave Tork thinks it might be accomplished this year. Tork, 28, ran afoul of the recent surge of vault marks himself last weekend. He pole vaulted 16-2 1/4 in Toronto Friday night for an indoor record — only to see Formosan-born decathlete stand out C. K. Yang top that height by 1 1/4 inches in a meet at Portland, Ore. Saturday night.

Just a few hours before Yang's record, a comparative unknown, John Belitz of the University of Maryland, vaulted 16-1 1/2 and became the sixth person in history — first collegian — to clear the once-incredible 16-foot barrier.

The fiber glass pole has caused such a revolution in vaulting in the past year or so that record holders seemingly come and go almost overnight. First it was John Uelses, who was the first person ever to clear 16 feet, turning the trick one year ago in New York. Since then, Tork, Belitz, Yang, Don Meyers, Ron Morris and Pentti Nikula of Finland have joined the select group.

Nikula is recognized as the world champion with a 16-2 1/2 vault since indoor vaults are not considered internationally.

CAMILLE IS LIGHTEST
NEW YORK (AP)—Camille Henry, left winger for the New York Rangers, is the lightest player in the National Hockey League. He weighs 152 pounds. He began in the league in 1953.

Escanaba Climbs Into First Place In League Race

Escanaba took sole possession of first place in the Great Lakes Conference race Saturday night with a 66-38 victory over the Newberry Indians.

The triumph was the seventh against two setbacks for Coach Harold Johnson's eagles who lead Gladstone and Marquette by half a game in the standings. The defeat was Newberry's eighth against one victory.

The Eskymos were in command all the way and Johnson gave his reserves a good workout in the third and fourth periods.

Gladstone Hosts Eskymos Tuesday In GLC Feature

MARQUETTE — Undefeated Champion, one of only two high school quintets still boasting a perfect record, rests on its laurels this week, but there's plenty of action on other Upper Peninsula courts.

Escanaba and Gladstone battle for top spot in the Great Lakes Conference Tuesday night, at the same time that Nahma and Eben will clash to snap a deadlock in the Central U. P. League.

Ironwood of the Michigan-Wisconsin Conference and Niagara of the Menominee Range circuit, are in action both Tuesday and Friday nights and can come close to clinching championships by sweeping both games.

Ontonagon, the second all-winning squad, hosts L'Anse in pursuit of the Copper Country Conference crown. The Polar Bears, 9-0 in league play and 12-0 overall, are two and one-half games in front of Houghton, but still far from clinching the title.

Both Champion and Ontonagon have been rated atop their respective divisions in state prep cage rankings for several weeks. Champion will be idle until it faces Marquette Bishop Baraga Feb. 6.

Tuesday's home game against Escanaba will be the first of three big tests for Gladstone, a highly rated Class B outfit which won seven consecutive games before bowing to the Eskymos early in January. Guard Len Sabourin suffered an ankle injury in that out-

Blue Devils Jolt Manistique Hopes

MANISTIQUE — Manistique's Great Lakes Conference title hopes suffered a jolt here Saturday night when the Emeralds bowed 45-41 to the Soo Blue Devils.

The setback was the third against four GLC victories for Coach Rudie Brannstrom's quint.

The game was tight all the way with Soo leading 12-11 at the end of the first period and Manistique leading 23-21 at halftime. The largest lead in the game was five points for Soo shortly before the end of the third period.

Soo led 43-41 with 1:15 remaining and elected to stall. With 20 seconds remaining Jim McDonough fouled Crawford and the Soo eager missed two free throws. The Emeralds gained possession, got off a shot and missed. Soo's Dennis Porter was fouled with eight seconds remaining and clicking and missed another Great Lakes tussle with Ishpeming, which Gladstone also lost. He saw some action against Norway last week, when the Braves snapped a two-game losing string.

Although not a high-scoring outfit, Gladstone is regarded as one of the better Class B quintets in the Peninsula because of its defensive record. The Braves have limited opponents to an average of 43 points—one of the best marks in the U. P.—and only Escanaba has gone over 50 in regulation time against them.

Tom Vanlerberghe, one of four six-footers in the lineup, is pacing the team in scoring with 136 points. The other six who played more or less regularly have totals ranging from 52 to 75 points.

Following Tuesday's game with their arch rivals, the Braves of Coach Bill Wood will play an up-and-coming Escanaba Holy Name team, then will host Marquette Graveraet. The latter, rapidly coming out of a slump, currently is tied with Gladstone for second place in the Great Lakes.

Niagara, looking for its third consecutive championship in the Menominee Range, meets Kingsford and Stambaugh this week and can wrap up at least a share of the 1963 crown by winning both. Ironwood will be just a game away from doing the same in the Michigan-Wisconsin if it wins at Ashland and at home against Hurley.

Vaulter Hits All-Time High

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—C. K. Yang, the decathlon star from Formosa, whose best previous mark in competition was 14 feet 11 inches, was only mildly surprised when he pole vaulted a startling 16-3 1/4.

"I cleared 16-2 in practice a couple of months ago," he said, "but after history's highest pole vault Saturday night in the Oregon Invitational meet."

Since the vault was made indoors, it will not be submitted for a world record. Only outdoor performances are considered for world marks.

Yang, latest in a string of athletes to crack the once formidable 16 foot barrier, said he went over 16 feet in practice "but that was with my old pole. I broke it."

Since then, he said, he has been using a fiber glass pole, the one with which he soared the highest in history.

The best previous indoor mark was 16-2 1/4 by Dave Tork at Toronto Friday night.

Yang, a sneaky 29-year-old who was runner-up in the 1960 Olympic decathlon, said he knew he could surpass that when he had cleared 15-11 in the Portland meet.

Cooks Is Edged By Michigamme

COOKS — The Cooks Clippers bowed to Michigamme 52-49 in non-league action, losing after holding a 27-24 halftime edge.

A cold third period, in which they were outscored 16-7, caused the Cooks downfall. Michigamme had beaten the Clippers by 25 points earlier in the season.

Phil Hartman scored 13 points and David Hill 12 to lead Cooks.

Hank Aguirre of Detroit led the American League pitchers in last earned runs with a 2.21 mark per nine innings.

Dick Weber Wins Bowling Jackpot

KANSAS CITY (AP)—As Dick Weber, the thin man from St. Louis, coolly made off with his second straight All-Star championship, he left the strong impression he is a match for any man in bowling, including veteran Don Carter.

Weber whipped big Billy Welu 642-591 in the three-game title roll-off Saturday night and pocketed a winner's check for $15,000.

Earlier in the day, the 33-year-old Indianapolis native beat Welu 3-1 in the 14th round for a big boost toward the title.

Carter of St. Louis, is still considered the greatest performer in bowling. He has won the world invitational six times in seven years and holds four All-Star crowns, in 1957-58 and 1953-54. He was close third this time.

Bu. Weber, the lightest finalist at 155 pounds, has finished 1-2 in the All-Star four times in the past

Natural Blondes Have Highest IQ

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

You may be showing your own ignorance if you call a girl a dumb blonde. In an IQ test of over 5,000 women, natural blondes scored slightly better than brunettes or redheads.

How many calories do you need a day? One rule of thumb: 20 times your desirable weight. That is, if your doctor says your ideal weight should be 150 pounds, your diet in calories should be 20 times that—or 3,000.

The life span of a 10-dollar bill is about four years.

Tradition: A raven is always kept in the tower of London. The tradition stems from Charles II, who predicted England would fall in ravens ever left the tower.

Sneezing Illegal

In the future petroleum may fuel you as well as your motor car. Scientists are perfecting processes to make edible proteins and vitamins from petroleum for human use. They already have been tested successfully on animals.

Our quotable notables: "A married woman's as old as her husband makes her feel."—Arthur Wing Pinero.

Odd legislation: In Toronto it's illegal to sneeze in public unless you use your handkerchief.

Untold story: Robert E. Lee,

Confederate military leader, never wrote his memoirs and, according to a historian, never read a book about the Civil War in which he played so notable a role.

Sudsy cash: In Mexico in 1841, you could wash with money. Metal was so scarce that bars of soap were stamped with the mint seal and circulated as currency. Each bar was worth about 1½ cents.

"Face Square"

Life is getting easier all the time. The latest thing on the market is an electric hairbrush for people who want to save their elbow grease for other chores.

Word lore: When I was a boy we called it a washrag. Now it's known as a wash cloth. But if you want one in Britain you ask for a "face square."

We don't know whether the U.S. Post Office Department is interested in this tidbit, but it is estimated messenger pigeons operate at a cost of about a third of a cent a mile. This includes their feed bill, loft space rental, etc.

News for gardeners: You can now pamper your flowers and vegetables with plant tranquilizers which help reduce the shock to them caused by heat spells, cold snaps and too much or too little rain.

Tug Lifted Up By Ice Squeeze

DETROIT (AP)—The bow of a 58-foot tug was lifted almost five feet out of the Detroit River Friday when the craft was caught in an ice squeeze.

"I thought we were going under," said Capt. William Bybee, master of the tug B. H. Becker.

Bybee's distress call brought the Coast Guard ice breaker Bramble hurrying from her Detroit dock to the Becker, which was on the Canadian side of the river. The cutter escorted the tug back to its dock at River Rouge, Mich.

Capt. Bybee said ice floes which drifted in from Lake St. Clair and trapped his tug were at least six feet thick. "We listed sharply to starboard when we got caught," he said.

The Becker is the tug which collided with the British freighter Montrose in the Detroit River last summer. The Montrose sank near the Ambassador Bridge, which connects Detroit and Windsor, Ont., but the ship was raised later.

The Becker has been on a daily winter run from Detroit to Obijaway, Ont., towing salt barges.

Clare Rewards Lady Of Woods

CLARE (AP) — A free trip to the beauty parlor awaits today the Nankin Township woman who has spent the last eight days in the woods near here to win a $150 bet.

Mrs. Lavina Radabaugh, 47, entered the woods Friday to prove a woman could spend eight days outdoors and survive with only the equipment she could carry on her back.

Mrs. Radabaugh will be escorted into town by a convoy of antique autos after she leaves her camp in the woods 10 miles northeast of here.

She'll get the complete beauty parlor treatment — courtesy of the Clare Business and Professional Women's Club — and then collect the 150 silver dollars from the Clare Chamber of Commerce.

Among her visitors yesterday was Tony Wedal, of Clare, who in a way was responsible for Mrs. Radabaugh's eight days of roughing it.

Wedal stayed eight days alone last year on a $150 bet.

Mrs. Radabaugh wrote to the sponsors of Wedal's stay and said "any fool" could do the same thing.

The chamber dared her to try it and she did.

The camping-out craze is used to publicize the annual Clare Winter Carnival. Other events include square dancing on frozen lakes, a golf tournament in the snow, speed skating and barrel jumping.

Son Frostbitten; Flint Couple Asks $250,000 Damages

FLINT (AP) — A Flint couple filed a $250,000 damage suit Friday as an aftermath of a mixup last Monday in which their five-year-old son suffered frostbite of his hands and right foot.

Plaintiffs are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gibbs, parents of Tommy Gibbs.

Tommy became separated from a school group Monday while he was attending an indoor circus. He had to walk a mile and a half, part of it with one boot off, and suffered severe frostbite.

The suit, filed in Circuit Court, charges that the circus, operators of the auditorium in which it was held, and the bus company which carried the charter party, with compound negligence.

Wisconsin Called Helpless To Fight Organized Crime

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. John W. Reynolds says Wisconsin officials "are now relatively helpless in combatting organized crime," and called for creation of a state crime investigation agency.

The governor, in making his announcement at a news conference Friday, said it was "a matter of record that Wisconsin citizens have been victimized by organized criminal activity since 1954."

He said that the need for a state-level agency "is readily apparent, and I want the people to realize this."

State Briefs

SAGINAW (AP) — Miss Katherine R. Reebel of Ann Arbor became president of the Michigan Society of Gerontology as it concluded its two-day meeting Friday. Dr. V. K. Volk of Saginaw was named president-elect. Herbert Rubenstein of Lansing was elected secretary and Mrs. Leo Silver of Detroit treasurer.

DETROIT (AP) — Harry E. Seitz, Sumpter Township supervisor, was nominated Friday for the $10,500-a-year job as Wayne County civil defense director. The appointment is subject to approval by the county supervisors and Gov. Romney.

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Washtenaw County Democrats are urging a "no" vote on the proposed new Michigan Constitution. Delegates to the county convention adopted the policy statement, 65-34.

Cambridge Girls Go Nude, Masked

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP)—Five Cambridge University girls will go on public display next month clad in G-strings, a wisp of tulle and masks to preserve their anonymity.

It's all in the cause of the drama.

The girls will play nude tableau figures in a production of the musical "Expresso Bongo." They appear in a striptease club scene.

Tickets are selling well, a spokesman said.

Fake Lost Boat Story Admitted

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—A man accused of sending coast guardsmen on a search of Lake Michigan for a non-existent boat and who later skipped bond pleaded guilty in U. S. District Court Friday to on a charge of making false statements.

Robert E. Ladley, 33, admitted making false statements to the Coast Guard on Aug. 27, 1960. He was indicted on the charge by a federal grand jury in July, 1961 at Grand Rapids.

Ladley had reported to the Muskegon base that his brother and another man were missing on Lake Michigan in a converted PT-boat. The Coast Guard searched the lake for two days with air and surface craft but failed to find the boat or confirm such a vessel existed.

He failed to appear July, 1961 for sentence on the charge and the government started a search for him. Ladley, formerly of Grand Rapids, was released re-
